

Dear Editor,

As I read the article from NARAL and the ACLU I found many reasons to write to you today, however the most egregious outrage was that they felt women need to continue to have a choice to kill their unborn child. They compared this choice to the right to vote or free speech. How ludicrous!

Women have many choices when it comes to their reproductive anatomy and the best choice a woman can make is to simply not have sex outside of a loving marriage. This not only protects her from pregnancy but from some fatal diseases.

I am aware that there are times the woman has no choice, rape happens too often. However, one must consider the fact that human life is a valuable entity and only God should have the right to determine if that child is born.

NARAL's biggest problem is that they are twisting and deceiving the facts to the legislators and to the public by promoting murder of the unborn...at all costs. They want you to believe that they support women's health. After the abortion is bought and paid for, do they offer women any physical medical follow up? Do they offer post-abortion counseling? Do they offer any spiritual guidance?

Thousands of women suffer from emotional problems that affect the rest of their life if they do not seek proper counseling and forgiveness from our Heavenly Father. There is forgiveness and there is emotional health after a traumatic experience such as an abortion. Yet, NARAL and other abortion minded organizations will try to convince you that having an abortion is no less traumatic than having a pap smear.

Legislators have a duty to legislate in order to protect our citizens' physical and mental health. Recently, they considered making Wyoming a non-smoking state. I applaud their concern. However, when unborn babies are being murdered and the mother's reproductive, mental, and spiritual health are being affected, maybe they should look at the really important issues first and foremost.

Becky Vandeberghe
WyWatch Co-Chair
Carpenter, WY